INTRODUCTION.

It is perhaps needless to say that care has been taken in transcribing the records as given in the originals, that their value may be made certain by being accurate. Mistakes no doubt there are in names and dates, but these cannot be frequent, and in most cases are not due to the compiler. The spelling of names, as a rule, is the same as it was given in the first place. This accounts for the difference in names and the vagaries that frequently occur. It was not thought best to follow the literal wording of the original entries in the old town books, but to separate the different classes under their respective headings, Births, Marriage Intentions, Marriages and Deaths. The first of these items have been arranged alphabetically under the names of the parents, the children following in chronological order. This seemed to be easier of identification, while saving considerable space, which was a matter calling for attention. Intentions of marriages and marriages have been given under the surnames of both bride and groom. The deaths are in the alphabetical order. Occasionally this rule has been broken, especially among the births, where sometimes a marriage or death is given, as it would make more complete the item, which might not be consistently filled elsewhere.

As indicated by the title-page, the sources of information have been many, for the compiler labored zealously in his work. It was not deemed necessary to designate these sources, as that would tend to confuse the reader and add little, if any, value to the item. The abbreviations are those generally followed in works of this kind, and will be readily understood. For instance, b. stands for birth; m. for married; d. for death; dau. for daughter; s. for son; w. for wife; bur. for buried, etc.

The town has very generously made possible this publication by the payment of three hundred dollars towards the cost of production, the balance of the expense, something like two hundred dollars, being borne by the undersigned.

Above all else the thanks of every person interested in this subject are due to Mr. Annis for his patient, conscientious work in compiling these records, a task of no little magnitude, which he has performed without payment or expectation of reward. He was in every way admirably well fitted for the undertaking, and I believe he has done his work well. It is no more than justice that I should give here a brief sketch of his life.

DANIEL GAGE ANNIS.

Mr. A. L. Annis, in his compilation of the Genealogy of the Annis family, says that Charles Cumway Annis, born in Enniskillen, Ire., probably of English parentage, in 1638, was the ancestor of most, if not all, of the persons in this country bearing that surname. This Charles Annis, at the age of 28, married Sarah Chase and settled in Newbury, Mass. The descendants of this worthy couple are very numerous and are widely scattered over the United States, Canada and Nova Scotia.

Charles and Sarah (Chase) Annis had nine children, the fourth of whom, Abraham, was born April 12, 1672, and resided in Newbury, Mass. He married Hannah, daughter of Christopher and Hannah (Belknap) Osgood, born October 19, 1668. They had ten children. The second son and fourth child was named John and was born May 1, 1700. He married, December 16, 1724, Abigail Rolfe, daughter of Ezra and Sarah (Jackson) Rolfe. This couple had nine children, the third of whom was named Rolfe, born December 21, 1734; married September 1, 1757, to Sarah Rollins, daughter of Benjamin and Hannah (Annis) Rollins. This couple had two children, and probably others. Isaac, the second son, was born in November, 1759, and married Hannah Dwinnell in 1785 or 1786. He was a Revolutionary soldier. The children of Isaac and Hannah (Dwinnell) Annis, all born in Londonderry, were eight, according to the records, and the second of these, John, was born October 13, 1790, and died April 22, 1871.

Daniel G. Annis was the youngest son of a family of five sons and six daughters, the children of John and Delilah (Coburn) Annis, and was born in Londonderry, N. H., January 25, 1839. His father and grandfather both lived in Litchfield, though the former removed to a farm in north Londonderry, which he purchased in 1820. All of his children were born here. He was a member of the old Whig party and of its offshoot, the Republican party. His wife, Delilah, died in 1853, and he in 1871, April 22.

The subject of this sketch, Daniel G. Annis, received his education in No. 8 district school of Londonderry and Pinkerton Academy in Derry. Upon completing his education he taught school for several winters, and soon after reaching his majority was engaged a couple of years in the ice trade for the well-known firm of Smith & Prescott, Jamaica Plain, Mass. In the winter of 1862–63 he returned to the farm to care for his parents and look after the homestead.

During his long and useful life Mr. Annis has filled many offices of public trust to the great satisfaction of his townsmen. He served as selectman in 1867 and 1868, and was chosen again to that office in 1893 and 1894, being chairman of the board for both terms. He was town clerk from 1873 to 1882 inclusive, and town treasurer from 1874 to 1878 inclusive, and again town treasurer in 1891 and 1892. He was collector of taxes from 1874 to 1884, inclusive, and chosen again to that office from 1895 to 1911, inclusive, making his service in that capacity of twenty-eight years. He was postmaster of North Londonderry for four years, and he has held the commission of justice of the peace for thirty-three years. His long service in the different offices he has held speaks in more eloquent words than tongue of his honesty and efficiency.

Mr. Annis is a member of the Londonderry Presbyterian church, which he joined in 1863. He is a charter member of Londonderry Grange, instituted in 1875.

Mr. Annis was married June 18, 1868, to Miss Mina Alfaretta, eldest daughter of Samuel and Nancy (Proctor) Gilcreast. She died February 19, 1885, aged 37 years, leaving one son, John S., born September 24, 1871. He married, second, Miss Fannie M. Fling, December 1, 1886. She was the oldest daughter of John W. and Mary Ann (Goodwin) Fling, and died January 16, 1901, leaving no children.

The "Old Homestead Farm" was disposed of several years ago, and since then Mr. Annis has made his home in a commodious cottage near Londonderry depot. While acting as town clerk he thoroughly examined the records of the town from its settlement in 1719 and arranged in alphabetical order the vital statistics and many other important items of town record. Since then he has brought this list down to 1910, adding very much to it from other sources, until the work has grown to the size and importance of this volume of over 300 pages.

GEN. GEORGE REID.

Londonderry has furnished many men and women of prominence in the world's work outside of the town, and it would be eminently proper that sketches of these should be given here, but space forbids even the mention of anything like a full list. I cannot refrain from referring to that pioneer of Presbyterianism in this country, Rev. James McGregor; Rev. Matthew Clark, the fighting parson, who was his successor; Matthew Thornton, M. D., one of the signers of the Declaration of American Independence; Joseph McKeen, the noted Doctor of Divinity; James Wilson, the inventor of the school globe; and last, but not least, Gen. George Reid, the Revolutionary patriot.

Of General Reid by far too little has been said, and knowing of no portrait that could better grace this volume, I have been to the expense of having one painted expressly for this work. He was born in Londonderry in 1733, the son of James and Mary Reid. He seems to have been educated mostly under private tutelage, and early was imbued with a military spirit, and had a local company under organization before the news of the battle of Lexington reached his home. Immediately he called his men together and marched them to Cambridge. His company did good service under the left wing of Stark's men at Bunker Hill. The Continental Congress rewarded him for his meritorious work with the commission of captain of a company in the Fifth Regiment of infantry.

Rising rapidly in his ranking capacity as an officer, his record during the Revolution was an admirable one, noted for courage and keen foresight as a military leader. He participated with distinction in the battles of Long Island, White Plains, Trenton, Brandywine, Germantown, Saratoga, Stillwater, and experienced the hardships of the winter at Valley Forge. He, with General Cilley, served in Sullivan's famous expedition against the Six Nations. In 1785 he was made brigadier-general of the New Hampshire troops.

At the time of the threatened armed disturbance in 1786, arising from the demand of certain persons in New Hampshire asking for the issuance of paper money which could be used as legal tender in the payment of taxes and debts, General Reid was placed in command to quell the uprising. His own town had voted for this measure, so that he was in a trying situation. But he proved equal to the occasion, and owing to his prompt and decisive action the whole affair was suppressed and a settlement effected without the loss of life or prolonged disturbance of the peace. A local writer in speaking of this affair says: "So intense was the feeling against him in his own county for the part he had taken in suppressing the insurrection that his life and property were threatened. On one occasion, when an angry crowd surrounded his house at night, he appeared at the window fully armed and addressed the rioters who had come to take his life. His coolness and the force of his words alone induced them to disperse without doing him harm."

General Reid is one of the forceful characters of his day of whom too little is known. He married, in 1757, Mary Woodburn, daughter of John Woodburn and Mary Boyd. She was a most estimable woman, who possessed a vigorous intellect combined with a cheerful and happily modulated disposition, which served as a happy medium to control his more excitable nature. Her half-brother, David Woodburn, was the maternal grandfather of Horace Greeley. General Reid died in 1815, at the age of 82 years, while Mrs. Reid followed him April 7, 1823, in her eighty-eighth year. Londonderry has had no more worthy couple, and they deserve greater recognition than they have received.

I could not resist the temptation of including in these pages the romantic story of "Ocean Mary," one of the fair daughters of Londonderry, as the facts have been gathered by Mr. J. Warren Thyng and told in his inimitable way.

THE ROMANCE OF "OCEAN MARY."

Previous to 1720, the year in which the principal events of this narrative occurred, many families of Scotch peasantry crossed the North Channel and found, for a time, homes in the larger towns on or near the coast of Ireland. Thus Londonderry became the residence of a large number of Scotch yeomanry.

In those old times of slow ships and many perils of the sea, it was a far cry from Londonderry in Ireland to Londonderry in the Granite State. Still, Scotland and the Emerald Isle had already sent sturdy pioneers to the new world on the Merrimack.

Tradition, often the truer part of history, has failed to save from oblivion the name of the ship which sailed from Londonderry for Boston in July, 1720, but she is said to have been in many respects vastly superior to others of her class in those times. At any rate, long before she dropped anchor off the picturesque coast many well-to-do families had prepared for the long voyage. Of those who from the deck of the departing ship watched the green shores of Ireland fade from view, a large proportion were not only strong of limb, but thrifty and provident.

Out through Lough Foye, past Inishowen Head and far beyond Giant's Causeway, with favoring winds, sailed the fated ship.

Among the passengers were James Wilson and his young wife. A year before, Wilson married Elizabeth Fulton, and they were now on their way to Londonderry, N. H., where land had been laid out to James Wilson as one of the grantees of that town.

In the small valley settlement to which Wilson and his wife were traveling were friends under whose hands profitable harvests were sure, and a generation was springing up whose influence was to be felt long years after.

Concerning the earlier part of the voyage of the emigrant ship, tradition is nearly silent, although certain fragmentary accounts hint of a protracted calm and following storm of such violence that the vessel was driven from her course. However that may be, it is reasonably certain that the passage was about one third accomplished when events transpired that made the voyage memorable in the lives of all on board.

One sultry evening the lookout saw on the horizon a sail standing like a gray silhouette against the early rising moon. All through the hot summer night the strange craft wore nearer and nearer, and when morning came her low hull could be seen like a black shadow under her full set of canvas.

The pirate was within gunshot of the emigrant ship. To fight or run away was not to be thought of. The slow ship had not a dozen muskets. They simply waited. They had not long to wait, for boats were soon alongside and, swarming upon the deck, the robbers fell to work as men who knew how to plunder and kill. Crew and passengers were bound, and some were left lying where they were captured, and some were rolled into corners, just as suited a momentary freak of the invaders.

None were killed. Valuables were gathered into parcels convenient to be transferred to the pirate ship. The robber captain, going below to search the officers' quarters, threw open the after-cabin door with a rough hand, but seeing a woman lying in the berth, stopped.

"Why are you there?" demanded the ruffian.

"See." The terrified woman uncovered a baby's face.

Then the pirate drew near. "Is it a boy or a girl?"

"A girl."

"Have you named her?"

"No."

The pirate went to the cabin door and commanded that no man stir until further orders. Then, returning, he went close to the berth where the woman lay, and said gently, "If I may name that baby, that little girl, I will unbind your men and leave your ship unharmed. May I name the girl?"

"Yes."

Then the rough old robber came nearer still and took up the tiny, unresisting hand of the baby. "Mary," was the name the woman heard him speak. There were other words, but spoken so low she could not hear. Only his Maker and his own heart knew, but when the child drew its hand away the mother saw a tear on the pink fingers.

There have been other knights than Bayard.

As good as his word, the pirate captain ordered all captives unbound and goods and valuables restored to the places from which they had been taken. Then with his crew he left the ship and pulled to his own vessel. But the emigrant ship had scarcely got under way when a new alarm came to them. The pirate was returning.

If they were dismayed at his reappearance, they were surprised to see him come on board alone and go directly below to the cabin. There he took from a parcel a piece of brocaded silk of marvelous fineness of texture and beauty of design. Seen at a little distance, the effect of the pattern is as of a plaid, combining in wonderfully harmonized tones nameless hues of red and green, softened with lines of what evidently was once white.

Time has, perhaps, somewhat mellowed its color tone, but the richness of its quality is as the richness of pearls.

"Let Mary wear this on her wedding day," the pirate said as he laid the silk on the berth.

The pirate left the ship and was seen no more. In the fulness of time the emigrant ship reached Boston without further incident. There James Wilson died soon after landing. Elizabeth Wilson, with Mary, soon after went to live in Londonderry, where friends were waiting for them. Here the widow married James Clark, great-great-grandparent of Horace Greeley.

For years the people of the little hamlet religiously kept July 28, in thanksgiving for the deliverance of their friends from the hands of pirates.

Some time early in the year 1738 Thomas Wallace emigrated to America and settled in Londonderry, where, on December 18 of the same year, he was married to Ocean Mary by Rev. Mr. Davidson of that town. Her wedding gown was the pirate's silk.

A granddaughter and a great-granddaughter have also worn the same dress on like occasions.

Four sons were born to Mary Wallace, three of whom removed to Henniker. There, on a sightly hill, Robert built the house which in his day was far and away the grandest mansion in all the country around. He was a man of large hospitality and intelligent strength of character.

Here Ocean Mary lived many years, and died in 1814 at the age of ninety-four years. Her grave is in the Center burying-ground, about half way down the middle walk, a bowshot distant from the railroad station. The curious visitor may, if he choose, read the inscription on the slate: "In Memory of Widow Mary Wallace, who died Feb'y 13, A. D., 1814, in the 94th year of her age."

The likeness tradition has left of Ocean Mary is that of a woman symetrically tall, with light hair, blue eyes and a florid complexion, together with a touch of the aristocracy of nature and a fine repose of manner in her energetic, determined and kindly ways.

—J. W. Thyng.

ANCESTORS OF THE COLONISTS OF LONDONDERRY.

The historians of the austere Pilgrims of Plymouth and the stern Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay colony have been numerous, so that the story of the political, and more especially the religious, persecution which sent them from their native land has become a familiar subject to him who reads history. It is a story of deep wrongs and unswerving fidelity to the principles upon which they builded their code of moral philosophy.

Coming to New England almost, if not quite, contemporaneously with the two named was another class of colonists of whom far less has been written. These brave men and fearless women were from the sturdy yeomanry of northern and western England, and the founders of most of the towns in the Merrimack valley. Unlike the two mentioned first, though a God-fearing people, they did not nurture in their hearts a religious grievance, but came here with a desire to improve their condition in life. They were the progressive pioneers of New England. Scarcely a town granted in those days in New Hampshire failed to have one or more of these families. Ay, there is probably not a state in the union today whose census roll does not contain the names of some of their descendants. Many of them appear in the following pages. In the cosmopolitan make-up of the English-speaking people these colonists could claim a remote kinship with the Pilgrims and the Puritans, but far enough removed to have moulded a new type of citizenship.

While possessing as rugged virtues as either of the others, and bearing a yoke of religious persecution that made the loads of the others seem light in comparison, the colonists of Londonderry belonged to a different ancestry. In a past so remote that no historian has dared to fix the date, certain wild tribes of western Asia, belonging probably to the Scythian race, swept over Europe, scattered clans stopping by the way until the continent was dotted here and there with their camps. Some even pushed out from the mainland to the island since named Ireland. More addicted to warfare than to peaceful pursuits, they failed to formulate a form of government, and existed as hostile tribes side by side.

Possibly five hundred years since the invasion of the Scythians, or Celtics, and about eight hundred years before the reputed founding of Rome, an adventurous people belonging to the Gaelic, Milesian or Scotic race followed in the footsteps of the first, conquering the rude inhabitants of Europe, as in more recent years the Roman legions followed in their footsteps. A certain number of the Scotic race crossed over the channel from the mainland into Ireland, and, for weal or woe, pitched their tents in the midst of the race already occupying the island.

The newcomers had a decided advantage over the original colonists of Ireland inasmuch as they brought with them a good measure of the enlightenment that had established laws, morals and intelligent government in Assyria, Egypt, Babylon and other eastern countries. It was an easy matter for them to conquer or drive into the interior of the island the earlier claimants for the territory. For hundreds of years, however, these Milesian rulers of Ireland were divided among themselves, different lords, descendants of the original stock, holding petty sovereignty by might over as many followers as they could bring under their subjection. During this long interval, in which there must have been more or less mingling with the earlier race, a part of the great Scythian or Celtic family, the Romans, had invaded Great Britain and left upon its people the seal of the Church of Rome.

The uncompromising division of the inhabitants of Ireland caused certain of the nobles to push farther and farther north, until some of the most venturesome had crossed the North Channel and entered ancient Caledonia, a corruption of the Celtic term Celyddon, "dweller in the forest," as Scotland was then called. This country was peopled largely by a stalwart race known as the Picts, dwelling in the highlands, and another clan known as the Saxons, in the lowlands. The last had come near the middle of the fifth century, and one of their kings, Edwin, had founded Edinburgh. The pioneers from Ireland came in the beginning of the seventh century and established themselves on the western coast. They were called "Scotch-Irish," and this is the first time that name appears in history.

Naturally the Picts and Saxons looked upon the newcomers as foes, and, though they had nothing else in common, they fought with the single purpose of driving from their shores these invaders, but in vain. On common footing now the Scots united under the banner of one Kenneth, an illustrious name in Scottish history. During this period the Picts were converted to the religious belief of the conquerors. For over six hundred years this conquest went on, until there were added to the fame of Kenneth that of Alexander, Malcolm and other heroic figures. Always opposed by bitter enemies, the warfare continued until each firth and burn, glen and moor, lovely vale and grassy slope awoke to deeds of valor such as come where the genius of civilization clashes hand to hand with the nemesis of barbarism.

The name of Caledonia was succeeded by that of Scotland, but, though the Scots had been successful, a grave peril still threatened their liberty. This fell destroyer was an enemy they nurtured in their own bosoms. While, no doubt, there lingered some vague remembrance of the simpler faith of Iona, the "landscapes were covered with fair, rich and stately abbeys, and Cistercian and Benedictine friars, black or gray, consumed in opulent ease the wealth of the nation. Its bishops were temporal lords, ruling in no modest pomp over wide domains. The priests had engrossed one half of the land of a poor nation; the churches and the cathedrals glittered with the wealth that had been ravished from the cottages and hovels of the peasants, or won through the superstitions of feeble kings. Nor was there any land where the clergymen were more corrupt, or the gross manners of a depraved hierarchy less hidden by a decent veil."

The Moses to bring the light to this benighted land was Patrick Hamilton, a fair-haired student at Wurtenburg, who had listened to the inspired teachings of Luther, the great German reformer. With the courage of his convictions young

Hamilton returned to his native land to declare the doctrine of the new religion. He was given respectful attention by many, but he encountered bitter opposition from those who saw the doom of their own church in the acceptance of his. So Patrick Hamilton was seized and burned at the stake, the first victim of the Scottish Reformation. If the price paid was dear the reward was beyond his most sanguine expectations. As if by magic the ashes of Hamilton seemed scattered to the remote glens as well as to the towns. Nobles and peasants, monks and priests were awakened suddenly to the gravity of the situation. Queen Elizabeth came to the rescue, and trained soldiery that menaced the common people were driven from the field. The impetuous Knox rallied the people, and before the dazed papal heads could awaken to defend their position church and cathedral had been shorn of their images and sacred emblems, until Scotland was strewn with the wrecks of fallen monasteries and the moonlit ruins of some Melrose was to be found at night in any section. Quoting from the same authority as before: "With one vigorous exercise of latent strength the Scottish intellect had freed itself from Italian bondage and might well prepare for rapid progress in the new paths of reform. Nor could it have foreseen that pains or woes scarcely surpassed in the Vaudios valleys or in the fens of Holland were to spring from a sister church and from its native kings; that the darkest period in the history of its stern and barren land was to come from the malice of Rome disguised in the thin mask of bishops like Laud or Sharp, princes like the first and second Charles and the first and second James."

The history of the persecution of the Presbyterians of Scotland, as far as it relates to its enemies, is not pleasant to follow. One reason for the darkness of the portrayal is the fact that the Church of England had fallen into corrupt control following the excellent and liberal spirit of Elizabeth and James I. Under the dissolute princes that succeeded, the church ceased to be the friend of the common people. This was what drove the Puritan and Low Churchman to leave the country in such large numbers. It was the underlying current that impelled so many of the people to rebel against the Stuarts. In Scotland, where the new doctrine was fostered by the common people and not favored by the kings, Charles I. thought to suppress it by the arms of England.

A generation had passed since Hamilton had led in the Reformation, and at first the people awakened slowly to the threatened loss of the liberty gained by the fervid intellect and fearless defiance of their fathers. This time it took a woman to lead them out into the light. The bigoted Laud, representing the church and the king of England, had planned to install the new ritual of the popish church in place of the Presbyterian in the High Church of St. Giles at Edinburgh. When the announcement was made to the large congregation present, Jenny Geddes, rising in her righteous indigation, flung the stool upon which she had been sitting at the head of the dean, crying: "Vile wretch, will ye read mass at my lug?" Such an uproar followed this invective that priest nor bishop could silence the crowd. Nor was it stilled for more than a hundred years.

It was a stormy century that succeeded, and often the brave Presbyterians were so hard pressed that their cause seemed lost. But the fire would not be quenched, and it was no uncommon spectacle to see hundreds of the outlawed people coming out from their concealment to listen under a wide-spreading oak to the fervid pleadings of some spiritual leader upon whose head at that very moment was a heavy reward, while at any moment an officer of the rival church might seize him. In the early part of this interval a considerable number of the Scottish Covenanters returned across the channel into the north of Ireland, which had been so ravaged by the English that the land was deserted of its inhabitants. So, after more than a thousand years, the descendants of the early people of Ireland returned to the scenes of their forefathers. But there were no open arms to receive them, though they set about to repair their shattered fortunes with unfaltering courage.

In Scotland the battle waxed so fierce and strong that in 1638, with uncompromising enthusiasm, a vast congregation gathered at Greyfriar's church, Edinburgh, to pledge anew their faith in the Presbytery. A new covenant was written upon a huge parchment and signed by loyal supporters until, as big as it was, the great document could not contain all of the names of the would-be signers. This imperishable proclamation was more than a religious covenant of the faith of an awakened people, for it announced the independence of thought, the principles of liberty which were to make the thrones of kings tremble, and send to New England the tidings of Jenny Geddes. The unscrupulous Laud fell under the storm that assailed the prelatical régime. In November, 1640, the king of England convened that memorable parliament that reëstablished the Presbyterian church in Scotland and established it in England. Thus the stern decree signed upon the tombstone at Edinburgh was made supreme from the Orkneys to the English Channel.

Unfortunately, the Scots forgot some of the wrongs done them by the Stuarts, and with honest loyalty, now that they had gained their ends, espoused the cause of Charles II. This brought upon them the enmity of Cromwell, which should not have been. Still this opposition did not rise to persecution, and during the period from 1640 to 1660 the Presbyterians enjoyed comparative peace. When Charles II. came back to the throne, among the foremost to welcome him was the stalwart Scotchman, Archibald Campbell, Marquis of Argyle, who had placed the crown upon him as a prince and now hastened to London with his glad greeting. The ungrateful Stuart, remembering only the just criticism Argyle had once uttered against his vices but had long since overlooked, arrested the Scot and threw him into the tower. Later he was sent to Edinburgh doomed to the headsman's block. "I could die like a Roman," said the marquis to his friends, "but I would rather die like a Christian." Then, donning his cloak and hat, he walked calmly down the street to where the scaffold awaited him, accompanied by several of his weeping comrades. Ascending the steps without a tremor, he offered a short prayer, himself gave the signal, and became the first victim of the new and most infamous persecution.

Again Scotland was to be deluged in blood and the best and bravest of her people slaughtered like beasts of prey or sent into an exile more horrible in its sufferings than death. The brave clergy resolutely dared the hatred of their persecutors, who spared none they could seize. Worshipful conclaves were called together at irregular intervals in some lonely glen, under some beetling crag, or at some isolated cavern reeking with the sweat and slime of ages. The oppression made new converts, and the number of the Presbyterians increased rather than diminished, until at last the hunted Covenanters resorted to arms. Rallying from far and wide they made a desperate stand at Pentland Hills. Amid the dismal highlands that environ Edinburgh the forlorn fugitives met in battle the trained soldiery of England led by the ferocious Daziel. The outcome was inevitable. After raging all day the battle ended in the night, and the sun rose the following morning upon the saddest spectacle that even Scotland had ever witnessed. If the battle of Pentland Hills was to be taken as an omen, then surely the fate of the Scottish church had been sealed in blood.

On a beautiful Sabbath morning in June, 1679, was fought under the frowning brow of Loudon Hill the battle of Drumclog, a repetition in its results of that by Pentland Hills. The cruelty of the conquerors passes belief. Clergymen, who had no share in the strife, were hung in chains; women, whose greatest crime had been to weep over the dreadful death of loved ones, were thrown into dungeons filled with vermin and horrors that fail of description. Innocent children, if not put to death, were sent into slavery in faraway lands. The same authority I have already quoted from says: "In the deepest and wildest recesses of their native land the more resolute and enthusiastic of the Covenanters kept untarnished the purity of the Scottish faith. On the dank morass, where the peat water was their only drink; in dark and misty glens, overhung by forests that skirted lofty mountains; in rifts of earth hidden deep amidst the bogs; in caverns covered by brushwood and wet with unwholesome distillations from the rock might be seen groups of wild and stalwart men, with grizzly beards, eyes gleaming with strange light, and countenances often glowing amidst their suffering with a holy joy. . . . Each man carried a sword and a little clasped Bible. And these were the remnant of those who had gathered in joy on the banks of the Clyde, or collected in joyous throngs under the broad shelter of Loudon Hill."

The records of these brave leaders of religious trials and triumph more worthy of the magic touch of the Wizard's* pen than the heroes he pictured in such vivid language read like the wonder fables of old, while they treat of real life. Prominent among the martyrs to the holy cause was John Welch, a descendant of John Knox, already mentioned. This eloquent preacher was highly educated, and he abandoned a wealthy church that he might minister to the fugitive followers of his faith. A large reward was offered for his head, and he was hunted by men and bloodhounds, but for twenty years he managed to elude his enemies, who never seemed to sleep. During the trying years of his wandering pastorates the voice of this meek yet eloquent "rebel" never ceased to echo amidst his native hills, while no enemy was so artful as to catch him napping. Wherever he went vast numbers of eager followers sprang as if by magic into his presence, listening to his burning messages. Were it whispered that John Welch was near, churches were deserted and the dim aisles of the forest were filled with his audience. Always armed, and never daring to count upon his safety from those who were eager to get the five hundred pounds set upon his life, one day he was at Pentland Hills sharing the perils of a losing fight, escaping by a three days' ride in the saddle without food or sleep, on another he held his great audience enthralled with his eloquence on the flooring of the frozen Tweed, with a block of ice for his pulpit. Anon he was celebrating communion at the long table spread in the green meadows of his native heath, with more than three thousand of his people with him. This was in 1678, and in less than two years, broken in health and worn out with his wonderful endeavors, but full of hope for the future, he crossed by stealth the Scottish border and fled from his native land, never to return except as his body was brought back by loving disciples and given rest beside the home he had forsaken that he might help sustain his people in their years of darkness.

A sterner type of the dissenter was Donald Cargill; if more uncompromising than his colleague not a whit less forceful in his arguments, nor lacking in courage or daring. He detested the backslider, and openly declared him more despicable than the open enemy. Wherever he went great numbers thronged to listen to him, becoming his converts or gaining new faith from his bold declarations. One day, as he stood before a multitude in one of the valleys of western Scotland, his voice suddenly failed him. Stricken dumb, the strong man wept his first tears, believing that henceforth he must look in silence upon his suffering people. His enemies asserted that it was a retribution for rebellious utterances. If so, it quickly passed, for a few days later, when he arose as he had done hundreds of times to address his audiences, speech suddenly returned, as unexpectedly as it had left him, and his voice was clearer and more impressive than before. In sooth, he seemed to have greater strength and power to win over to the cause the faltering and intimidated ones that came from far and near to listen to his inspired messages. But constantly haunted by his enemies, he was continually defying death and running the gantlet of snares and ambuscades laid for him. Preaching, baptizing, and marrying, yesterday at Nithsdale and Galloway, today at Bothwell, he was wounded, surrounded and seized by the prelatical forces. Again a wonderful versatility of escape enabled him to elude his foes once more, and he continued to invoke the judgment of heaven upon the false Stuarts and prophesy the fall of Monmouth and his allies. This could not go on always, and finally the master of prayer and dispenser of unbounded charity was captured and borne in triumph to the cross at Edinburgh. Defiant to the last, he went to his fate with a prayer for his friends upon his lips and words of startling denunciation for those who had wrought so bitterly against his country.

A close companion and worthy ally of this brave prophet, priest and revolutionist was Richard Cameron, and all that has been said of Cargill can be applied with greater emphasis to him, who boldly denied any allegiance to Charles II., who dared to denounce the Duke of York as anti-Christ; who dared to foretell the coming freedom of his people from the thralldom of such false rulers, never sparing those nearer home who had betrayed their most sacred trust. Cameron was the founder of a religious sect that has outlived his stormy days. He was in the midst of one of his fiery sermons in his open church on Aird Moss when the bullet of a cowardly marksman shot him down like a hunted deer, and his mutilated body was tossed aside as an image of worthless clay.

The story of Cameron's untimely fate heralded abroad, one of his companions and most ardent admirers, Alexander Pleden, came to kneel upon the sod sanctified with his blood. Uplifting his hands to Heaven, Pleden uttered those sincere words dear to every Scot after over two hundred years:

"O to be wi' Richie!"

His grave on Aird Moss is marked with a plain headstone, but it does not require any memorial to keep fresh in the minds of his followers the memory of the generous-hearted Richard Cameron. Hundreds of others just as brave and self-sacrificing as these mentioned, among them Henderson, the first to rally them at Glasgow, Pleden, exhorting to his disciples in his willow-covered cavern-church, the beautiful Renfrew, last of the brave Covenanters to fall a sacrifice to the religious principles of their heroic lives, might be cited, but it is not necessary. Their names appear almost to a man in the "Vital Records of Londonderry, N. H.," though the majority had found their way hither through the emigration to the north of Ireland in the midst of the oppression at home.

In the meantime those Scotch Presbyterians who had returned—1612 to 1620—from western Scotland to the north of Ireland, the very country their ancestors had deserted more than thirty generations before, had not been idle nor left in peace. The same power which had attempted to crush them had overrun and depopulated the land here. They had been encouraged to come here by King James I. in the hope that their presence would help him quell the turbulent spirit that had caused him so much trouble in Ireland. The ancient town of Derry was rebuilt from the ruins left by the warlike forces that had overrun the country in the conquest of James. To the name of this olden monastery was added that of London, the capital of England, and from that day the city has been known as Londonderry, singularly enough a mingling in name of the memory of those races so long at variance. It became a stronghold of Protestantism, and when the wheel of religious fortune had turned again in England, it was an object to attract the attention of James II. The inhabitants bidding defiance to the papal power, a siege was laid to the city on April 18, 1689, and maintained for 105 days of horror and suffering. Seven thousand men were inside the garrison at the beginning, but this number was reduced to three thousand before the end. The besieged were compelled to eat their horses and dogs, and were on their last ration of tallow and salted hides when relieved.

This part of the story has been told in the histories of Londonderry, so I am passing over it hastily. William of Orange had come to the rescue of the Protestants in the British Isles, and the shadow of oppression no longer overhung the homes of the Presbyterians. In Scotland, at least, the smile of peace and prosperity settled over brown moor and bracken-matted glen, in home and church, and in place of warlike training, her people turned to brighter ways, established schools, literature and pursuits that have won lasting renown.

While the ban upon their church had been lifted, still absolute freedom was denied the people in the north of Ireland, and finally some of them resolved to try their fortunes in New England. Accordingly an agent was sent to investigate the situation, and his report was so favorable that a goodly number came over in the summer of 1718, the leading spirit of the party being Rev. James MacGregor. Landing at Boston August 4, 1718, before another spring a grant of country twelve miles square was obtained of New Hampshire, and the foremost of the little colony reached Nutfield, the original name for this township, in April, 1719. Upon the morning of April 11, O. S., 1719, the little band of pilgrims met under the spreading branches of a majestic oak standing on the east shore of Beaver Pond. Immediately Parson McGregor returned thanks to the Great Benefactor for having brought them safely over sea that they might plant a new home here in the wilderness. He exhorted his followers to be faithful to the trust reposed in them, taking for the text of his first sermon Isaiah xxxii, second verse: "And a man shall be as a hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land." Certainly a most fitting thought, and under the ancient rooftree in the heart of the wilderness was founded the Presbyterian church in New England. I know of no grander scene in the history of this country.

Without wishing to engage in the controversy that has arisen over the name commonly given these people, I would remind the seeker after the facts that the original inhabitants of Ireland were of the Celtic race. Then, after five hundred years, or such a matter, the Milesians or Scots appeared upon the scene. An enlightened people, they naturally assumed supremacy over the others, gave their titles to the country, and intermingling, more or less, with the Celts, affirmed the family names. In 626 certain ones of this uneasy population crossed over the North Channel into Ancient Caledonia to overpower and absorb the Picts on the highlands and the Saxons on the lowlands, just as they had the Celts in Ireland. Then the country became known as Scot's Land or Scotland. In time they changed their religion, but the voice of Patrick Hamilton did not reach Ireland. Eventually some of the descendants of those immigrants to Caledonia went over into Ireland, the land of their remote ancestors, the Scots and Celts. But it is well to remember that in that long interval the Scots had mingled more freely with Pict and Saxon than ever with Celt, and that over thirty generations of this mixed product had appeared and vanished during a period long enough to have obliterated many racial characteristics; aye, to have created a new race in the crucible of destiny.

*561. "L. Cushing R." makes a mistake in stating that Hon. John Cushing, Jr., administered the oath to Washington at his second inauguration. It was his son, Chief Justice William Cushing. A massive granite boulder marks the spot of his burial on "Belle House Neck" in Scituate. It was a name given to his ancestral home in consequence of a bell that hung there for a century to give an alarm to the neighboring country in case of the approach of Indians. Another mistake is made when he states that Chief Justice William Cushing, his father, John, Jr., and grandfather, John, were judges at the same time in the same court. Judge John Cushing, Sr., died in 1738. Chief Justice William was born in 1732, so was six years old when his grandfather died. Chief Justice William Cushing was appointed in 1772; his father, Judge John Cushing, Jr., left the bench in 1771, so at no time were they in the same court together as judges. SCITUATE.

*566. In reply to the personal query in your last issue, "G. S." would say—The original tradition was that Esther Williams married the minister of Deerfield and that her father built for her the Deerfield parsonage—these were two public matters and as such were refuted. "D. S. L." now brings up a private affair. Did Esther's father build a house for her husband the doctor? I would not be overwise in the matter, but will give the known facts bearing on the question. Dr. Williams came to Deerfield about 1739. Dec. 5, 1740, he married a daughter of the well-known Hannah Sheldon, who jumped out of a chamber-window of the historic "Old Indian House." I do not know where the young couple first lived, but three years and three months later the doctor bought of Daniel Belding—who then removed to Norwalk, Conn.—the homestead where the latter had lived for twenty years. The presumption is that he occupied the house then bought and brought his second wife, Esther, there in 1748. There is not much evidence about the house on the place in 1744, but the little there is tends to show that the Belding house is the one in which Dr. Williams lived until his death in 1775. The earliest knowledge of its structure gives it a gambrel roof, which was replaced by a pitch roof some thirty years after the marriage of Esther.

"D. S. L." suspects that the tradition in question has a background of truth, like most others; but a tradition so faulty in its main features is entitled to small consideration. This, however, might be said: The house, no doubt, received extensive repairs at an early date, and here was an opportunity for parental munificence. G. S.

*587. 6. The mother of Mary Arnold, who married Thomas Mason of Medfield in 1722, was the daughter of Dr. Return Johnson and wife Mary, who came to Medfield from Andover about 1680. He is said to have married Mary Johnson at Andover in 1673. Their daughter Mary married, first, —— Arnold, supposed to be a descendant or relation of Barachias Arnold of Boston; but the lineage is as yet uncertain. Mary (Arnold) Mason was the daughter of this marriage. Her mother married, second, Samuel Sadey, and was living at Chelmsford in 1710. Information in regard to both the Johnson and Arnold families is much desired. Sadey [illegible] wife lived in Medfield from about 1711-13 [illegible] their deaths in 1744 and 1763.

*591. A great deal of information was given about the Allen family in April 20 issue, but not what I most wish. I want to find the ancestors of Benjamin Allen, who married Peggy Spofford, propably at Rowley, Mass., Nov. 6, 1751. Family tradition places him in the Samuel Allen line, but in the genealogies of the three brothers, Samuel, Matthew and Thomas, his name and marriage as above do not appear. In the Edward-Caleb line a Benjamin is named, who married Eunice —— not Peggy Spofford.

The children of Benjamin and Peggy (Spofford) Allen were:

Eunice, born Aug. 4, 1753, married —— Rogers of Orford; Olive, born Jan. 5, 1755; married Simon Church; Lucy, born March 28, 1758, married Walter Geer; Asa Spofford, born Nov. 22, 1762, married Polly Ferguson; Nathan, born May 4, 1768, married Deborah Farwell; Prudence, born May 14, 1769, married Isaac Farwell; Benjamin, born June 1, 1770, married Beulah Temple; Abigail, born Feb. 8, 1774, married Jesse Farwell; Caleb, born April 11, 1776, soldier in the war of 1812; Fanny, born May 3, 1779, married Joseph Burt of Windsor, Vt., died in New York State at the age of ninety. Has not some one of these descendants a record of the father's line of ancestors?

*858. 3. On that remarkable scrap of old, yellow paper, that was mentioned a few months ago in giving the record of Bartholomew Grozier, is this item: "Jonathan Darby, son of Eleazer and Mary Darby, born 11 March, 1700." From other family papers the writer has gleaned a few facts which may be of use to S. C. D.

FROM BOSTON RECORDS.

1 Edward Darby and Susanna Hooke, married Jan. 25, 1659, by Richard Bellingham, department governor.
2 Mary, daughter of Edward and Susanne Darby, born Dec. 29, 1660.
2 Priscilla, daughter of same, born June 20, 1672.
2 Eleazer and others, said to have been born in Braintree, where Edward Darby lived.

2 Eleazer Darby, married Mary Bull 1686-7. She was born Oct. 29, 1667, was the daughter of John and Mary Bull of Boston. Through them she inherited a portion of the property on Summer and Sea streets, known as the "Bull Wharf," now the site of the New York & New England Railroad Station. In family papers her signature and her husband's frequently occur, in the settlement of her father's estate. Eleazer Darby lived in the old Bull house after the death of his father-in-law, John Bull. "In 1695 he is given as an inhabitant of the 8th Ward." "In 1710, Eleazer Darby served with others as constable." "Sept. 20, 1715, Eleazer Darby, with Henry Hills, David Craigie, mariners, Nicholas Boone, bookseller, and Sam'l Adams, maltster, all of Boston, convey by vote of the selectmen, in behalf of themselves and associates, a certain piece of land called 'Church Green,' near Summer street, 65 feet in length and 44 feet in breadth, with convenient highways round the same. 'For the erecting thereof a meeting-house for the publick worship of God.' Whereas, Samuel Greenlief hath paid to Eleazer Dorby (the treasurer appointed) the sum of £40, being his part of the charge of second meeting-house, making him an associated member, and one single share in land and house, including a pew in second house, next adjoining Mr. Jonathan Bull's pew, next the men's seats, southerly. Jonathan Bull buys pew and share in said Church Green Aug. 12, 1718." The above-mentioned Samuel Greenlief and Jonathan Bull were Eleazer Dorby's brothers-in-law.

"In 1721, Captain Eleazer Dorby with others on committee to consider certain petitions about Wood & Cole and lay their proposals before the next meeting of the selectmen."

"1721, James Barnes at the house of Captain Darbie near Bull Wharf." In 1724, Liberty given to Eleazer Darby and Mr. Silence Allen to build two tombs between them in the South Burying Place, on the South line, No. 27, to Mr. Eleazer Darby; No. 28 to Mr. Silence Allen. "In 1724, Eleazer Dorby and his wife Mary receive their share of John Bull's estate, another paper says they received it Dec. 5, 1723. He did not enjoy it many years, as Eleazer Dorby's will, dated Nov. 10, 1730, was proven July 1, 1735; inventory Jan. 24, 1737; he gives his eldest son Eleazer Dorby a double portion of his estate. To Benjamin Dorby, the other son, house and land now occupied by his brother Eleazer. To Mehitable Dorby, his daughter, the house and land now occupied by her brother Benjamin Dorby, all the children and heirs of Eleazer Dorby, late deceased, A. D. 1742." (See Suffolk Wills, volume 37, page 153.

"The Bull house, wharf and flats were given to Eleazer, the eldest son." Mehitable Dorby dies, her share goes to her brothers. Benjamin Dorby quit claims to Eleazer Dorby July 4, 1748. Benjamin Dorby to Thomas Fletcher Jan. 30, 1754; Mrs. Mary Bull Dorby must have died before her husband, can find no date of her death.

Their children, "from Boston Records," are:

3 Mary, born April 3, 1688.
3 Anna, born Sept. 1, 1689; died July 3, 1890.
3 Ann, born Feb. 1, 1694.
3 Eleazer, born April 14, 1697; married Mary Cushing.
3 Jonathan, born March 11, 1700 (on the old yellow paper).
3 Francis, born March 16, 1703.
3 John, born May 27, 1707.
3 Benjamin, born March 18, 1709.
3 Mehitable. No date or name in Boston records of her birth.

3 Eleazer Darby, eldest son of the above, born April 14, 1697; married June 29, 1721, Mary Cushing, the daughter of Judge John and Deborah (Loring) Cushing. Mary Cushing born in Scituate, Mass., Nov. 24, 1700. They resided in Boston; his name is frequently mentioned in Boston Town Records.

"1733, Eleazer Darby, with others, have charge of the engine kept in Summer street."

"1735, Eleazer Darby belongs to engine company, Summer street, known as the South Water Engine."

"1737, Mr. Dorbey took down his chimney which did not suite his neighbors, they appeal to the selectmen."

"1738, Captain Eleazer Darby being abroad at sea, another of the members died, the engine company needed two men in their places."

"1742, Captain Eleazer Darby desired the selectmen to view his Fence near Bull wharf which is now down and is going to be Erected anew."

"1744, Revd. Mr. Roger Price granted liberty to bring out his fence on a Line with Captain Darby's, corner of Summer Street."

The "Rev. Mr. Roger Price" holding through his wife, Elizabeth (Bull) Price, a portion of the John Bull estate. Eleazer Darby holds his portion in his name until 1760, but, letters of administration upon his estate granted Dec. 19, 1757. No date of his death or that of his wife. Their children were:

4 Eleazer, born March 31, 1722.
4 Jonathan, born Sept. 14, 1726; Harvard Col. 1747.
4 Mary, born Sept. 4, 1728; married Captain Robert Robbins.
4 Ann, born March 30. 1731.
4 Abigail, born May 5, 1733.

It appears that the other daughters died, for Mary Dorby is called the "only daughter" of Captain Eleazer Dorby, when she married Captain Robert Robins about 1756-7, and they, in their turn, became possessors of Captain Eleazer Dorby's share in the Bull wharf property, as it gives, on one document in the writer's possession. In "Eleazer Dorby's name from 1713 to 1760. In Robert Robbins's name from 1760 to 1802." Mrs. Mary Dorby Robins died in 1770. Robert Robins married 2d Ann Wilkinson. She and her sister Cynthia came from England and opened a store in Boston. This marriage broke up the store. Cynthia lived with her sister, Mrs. Robins, but she died at Jonathan Dorby Robins's house in Cambridge. Cynthia Wilkinson possessed an extensive wardrobe, rich and curious; this was sold to the proprietor of the Federal Street Theatre. The children of Robert and Mary Dorby Robins were:

Jonathan Dorby Robins, born April 21, 1758. He married a daughter of Colonel Crafts of Boston, a niece of Governor Christopher Gore, who left her and her daughters an annuity during their lives. Jonathan D. Robins died in Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 21, 1848, aged ninety years. 5 Richard died 1780; 5 Mary married Moses Wallack; 5 Ann married David W. Bradlee. Captain Robert Robins's will dated July 10, 1794, proven March 17, 1801. Inventory March 30, 1801. His wife Ann survived him.

Here are items from the Boston Records:

3 Benjamin Darby, son of the first Eleazer, married Mary ——.
Mary, daughter of Benjamin and Mary Darby born May 4, 1737.
4 Elizabeth, daughter of Benjamin and Mary Darby, born Sept. 17, 1741.
4 Benjamin, son of Benjamin and Mary Darby, born Jan. 17, 1745.
4 Benjamin, son of Benjamin and Mary Darby, born May 25, 1748.

The following items are from the Boston Records of different families of Darbys, Dorbys and Dorbeys. The writer knows nothing about them, but will give them, as it may help to further information:

Robert, son of Robert and Sarah Darby, born Nov. 30, 1679. Sarah Darby died June 15, 1690.

John Darbey and Rachel Codney, married by Samuel Sewell, Esq., Oct. 9, 1690.

Thomas, son of Abraham and Hannah Darby, born Jan. 16, 1672.
Anna, daughter of Robert Darbey and Martha, his wife, born Nov. 11, 1706.
Thomas, son of Robert Darbey and Martha, his wife, born Nov. 20, 1709.
Martha, daughter of Robert Darbey and Martha, his wife, born Jan. 11, 1711.
John, son of Robert Darbey and Martha, his wife, born May 11, 1715.
Robert, son of Robert Darbey and Martha, his wife, born Dec. 20, 1717.

Eleazer, son of Robert Darbey and Mary, his wife, born May 28, 1760.

Katherine, daughter of William Darby and Hannah, his wife, born Nov. 19, 1750.

The writer's information is confined to the first and second Eleazers, as they were related to her family by birth, marriage and connecting estates. F. E. W.

(*978.) Wanted, the name and lineage of the wife of the Thomas Kent who was in Gloucester, Mass., in 1643, and who died April 1, 1658. His wife died Oct. 16, 1671. Wanted, also, the lineage of the wife of his son Samuel (he was born probably in England, and died in Springfield, Mass., Feb. 2, 1691). He married, Jan. 17, 1654, Frances Woodall, who died Aug. 10, 1683. Whose daughter was she? Did not their son John Kent, born April 28, 1664, died at Suffield, April 11, 1721, marry, May 9, 1686, Abigail Roe Dudley? Is there any genealogy written of the Sohier family in this country, and, if so, where may it be seen?

(*979.) 1. John Stevens lived in or near Barnstead, N. H., about 1760; he had one son, John, and eight daughters; Sarah married Andrew Willey; Olive never married; one (name not known) married Wiall Leavitt; Nancy; one (name not known) married —— Allen; another (perhaps named Matilda) married John Dockum; and another (name unknown) married —— Bunker. Can anyone give anything further about John's ancestry, or anything about John Dockum, who moved to Meredith, N. H.?

2. Jacob Merrill had a daughter Abigail, born 1780, died 1860, who married Ansel Annable. Jacob's wife is said to have lived to the age of 102. Can anyone tell anything of his ancestry?

3. Sarah Hill, who died June 5, 1782, married Silas Buzzell about 1766 or 1768. Can anyone state her ancestry? H. L. B.

*920. Joseph Coffin married Abigail Pilsbury of Newbury, who was born in Scotland; their son was Joseph, a painter, who married Elizabeth Jillings, daughter of Thomas. They came to Nantucket from Newbury in 1762. It is not known that they are related to the other Coffins of Nantucket. Joseph and Elisabeth had five children, who died unmarried. They also had Sarah, who married Peleg Long, son of Robert; their son, Thomas Maverick; their son, William M., married Mary Burdit, daughter of Edward. Joseph's second wife was Betsey Palmer, daughter of Samuel; they had one daughter, Polly, who married Theodore Fish. S. W. G.

*930. I have evidence showing that Hannah Rogers, who married Samuel Bradford, was not the granddaughter of John and Frances Rogers who lived in Mansfield, but of John and Ann Rogers who lived in Duxbury. There was a John Rogers in Weymouth, one in Mansfield, and one in Duxbury, all contemporaries, who have been sadly mixed by historians. To add to the confusion, each of them had a son John, and two of these sons had each a son John!

J. H. D.

The reply of L. H. G. to the query of H. A. S. agrees with my records. Can either of these persons give any information concerning the residence of Thomas Rogers in England, before he went to Leyden, and have they any information concerning his children other than Joseph, John, and, possibly, Timothy? *952. 1. Deacon Benoni Learned (not Leland, as printed) of Sherborn, Mass., was thrice married. His second wife, married in 1689 or 1690, was Sarah More of Sudbury. Marriages in Sherborn at that early date were not recorded there, but in Medfield, if at all. But it is more probable that they were married in Sudbury, and the town records there might show her ancestry. I examined the "History of Sudbury" and found that persons by the name of More had lived there. But it contains no genealogy, and did not help in answering the question. Sarah was received to the church in Sherborn in 1690 and died Jan. 25, 1737. A. H. B.

(*996.) Would it not be of benefit to the writer of a query if he gave the residence or place of birth of the person concerning whom he desires information? Many of these queries give merely the name and date, with no clew as to residence, thus making an answer wellnigh impossible, like "looking for a needle in a haystack." Many of us have town histories and copies of births, marriages and deaths of several towns, and if my suggestion were adopted, I think more of the queries could be answered, and thereby extend the value of this department of the Transcript.

(*1014.) "The History of Hanover" gives "Joseph Ramsdell, a descendant, of Duxbury, married Mary Homer, April 23, 1730, who died June 1, 1754. They had ten children. He married the second time Mercy Prior, Nov. 25, 1755, who died July 20, 1766; and he died Aug. 22, 1787, aged eighty-six. They had two children." The younger, Lydia, married Samuel Whitcomb of Cohasset. Among my grandfather's papers (he was son of Samuel and Lydia Ramsdell Whitcomb) I find the following: "My grandmother Ramsdell died Jan. 1, 1799, aged eighty-four. She was daughter of Nathaniel Delano of Duxbury; her name was Mercy. The original ancestor was (according to my mother's statement) Benjamin Delano. This man was a Scotchman. My grandfather's first wife was a Homer of Boston."

*977. Richard Currier was an early settler at Salisbury, Mass.; was town clerk in 1662-73, and for twelve years selectman; was one of the committee to build the meetinghouse in 1665; and the agent of the petitioners to obtain the separation of Amesbury from Salisbury. He was one of the most prominent men of the town. He died Feb. 22, 1683. His son, Deacon Thomas Currier, succeeded his father as town clerk in 1674, and was continued in that position till his death, Sept. 27, 1712. He was selectman seventeen years. He married Mary Osgood, a daughter of William Osgood. They had a family of nine sons and three daughters, of whom Richard married Dorothy Barnard, a daughter of John Barnard of Salisbury, and granddaughter of Thomas and Sarah Barnard; Thomas married Sarah Barnard, a daughter of Nathaniel Barnard of Nantucket; and Ann married Thomas Barnard, Jr., of Salisbury. Deacon Thomas Currier made his will Aug. 26, 1708, and in it mentions his daughter Ann, wife of Thomas Barnard. J. B. C.

I have placed in the following list Thomas Barnard, Sr., at the head, but I have no proof that Thomas, Sr., was the father of Thomas, Jr.; yet Thomas, Jr., inherited a great deal of land from some one. The Amesbury records were destroyed by fire in 1688, and the records lost were those between 1660 and 1688. The old Norfolk County records at Salem give the will of Thomas, Sr., and mentions nine children, two sons and seven daughters, but no Thomas, Jr., is there. Other records claim Thomas, Jr., eldest son, which looks probable, as he had so much property that he must have been the eldest son, and had a double portion, as was the custom.

1. Thomas Barnard, Sr., of Salisbury and Amesbury, Mass., married Helena ——.

2. Thomas Barnard, Jr., of Amesbury, Mass., born March 10, 1641, married Sarah Peasley; six children.

3. Samuel Barnard of Amesbury married Anne Currier of Amesbury, Oct. 22, 1696; twelve children.

Thomas Currier of Amesbury married Mary Osgood Dec. 9, 1668. 3. Anne Currier married Samuel Barnard Oct. 22, 1696; twelve children. J. F. J.

A. H. M.

*988. Mary Nash, who married Samuel Arnold, was the daughter of Alexander and Mary (Tirrell) Nash of Weymouth. Alexander Nash died Jan. 12, 1773, aged 69. His wife died Jan. 23, 1776. They lived on Commercial street, Weymouth, near Washington square, in the house now occupied by C. F. Vaughan. At the time of the Revolution the house was occupied by Samuel Arnold as an inn, and the Committee of Correspondence from the several towns in this section held meetings there. Samuel Arnold had twelve children. One of his daughters, Mary Nash, married Colonel Abraham Thayer of Weymouth. One of their grandchildren, Nathaniel F. Thayer, is in business at 61 South street, Boston.

S. W. R.

Samuel Arnold, Jr., of Braintree married Mary, daughter of Alexander Nash of Weymouth, April 4, 1767. He lived and died in Weymouth, and had eleven children, some of whom I knew.

Queries.

(*724.) 1. I should like to know the ancestors of Sarah Burnham who married Joshua Bill, June 5, 1708.

2. Of Hannah Bellamy who married Jonathan Bill, April 16, 1730.

3. Of John Tewksbury who married Sarah Bill Nov. 5, 1733.

4. Of Sarah Bass who married John Stone, son of Simon Stone.

5. Of Susanna, wife of David Stone; David was son of John, who was son of Gregory Stone.

6. I should like the date of the death of Elizabeth Williams, who married John Williams June 2. 1737.

7. Also date of death of Eunice Moore, who married Samuel Cutting of Sudbury, April 22, 1742. E. T. T.

(*725.) 1. Lucy Lewis and Elizabeth Alcock, mentioned in will of their mother, Lucy Stileman, New Castle, N. H., 1699. What were the names of their husbands?

2. Samuel Briard of Portsmouth and Lucy Lewis of Kittery, married April 16, 1719.

3. Tobias Fernald of Kittery married, May 19, 1748, Lucy Lewis.

4. John Phœnix of Kittery married, about 1738, Catherine Lewis; both living, 1786.

5. Peter Lewis of Kittery, yeoman, makes his will, Feb. 3, 1712-13.

6. John Newmarch and Elizabeth Alcock, both of Portsmouth, married May 29, 1726.

7. Captain Samuel Alcock married Elizabeth ——. He died Oct. 13, 1708. What was the maiden name of his wife, and did they have children?

Wanted, information which will assist in tracing any of the above-mentioned Lewises and Alcocks. S. H. C.

(*726.) 1. Wanted, the ancestry and descendants of Daniel Gilman, who married Tabitha Emery, daughter of Rev. Stephen Emery, pastor of First Church of Chatham, Mass., Dec. 8, 1763. Tabitha had a sister Hannah, who married John Ward Gilman of Exeter, N. H. "Freeman's History of Cape Cod," says he was from Dexter, Me., but I think that is a mistake, as my ancestress, his daughter "Hannah Gilman" (born 1766, died in Boston 1854), was brought from Exeter, N. H., to Chatham, Mass., when but a few years old in grandfather Emery's chaise, to be brought up by him, at or shortly after the time of her mother's death. Hannah Gilman married—1st, Elisha Eldridge; 2d, Jeremiah Kelly; 3d, John Harding. Either Emery or Gilman genealogy as published does not give any satisfactory account of this Daniel Gilman or of Hannah Gilman his daughter, but during her life time she was always much interested in her Gilman connections of Exeter, N. H. She inherited much of Rev. Stephen Emery's property.

2. I should like to know the ancestors and descendants of Jeremiah Kelly, second husband of Hannah Gilman.

3. Also of John Ryder of Chatham, Mass.; born Sept. 27, 1772; died Dec. 20, 1854; married April 10, 1792, Fear Dunbar, born Jan. 3, 1774; died October, 1853. John Ryder's father's name was Jonathan, and he died of yellow fever in the West Indies.

4. I should like to know if there are now living any of the descendants of John Hall, who came from Coventry Warwickshire, England, in the fleet with Governor Winthrop, to Charlestown in 1630, and whose name is No. 19 on the list of church members of the First Church of Charlestown, afterwards First Church of Boston. I have traced back the ancestral connections in England. I should like to exchange copies of "Crest and Coat-of-Arms" with other members of the Hall family, as there are several different variations with different branches of the family. H. L. H.

(*728.) I want to discover the ancestry or, at least, the parentage of the following:

1. Susannah Whipple of Ipswich who married David Batchelder of Wenham in 1709.

2. Dorothy Barnard, who married Captain Richard Currier of Amesbury Aug. 25, 1695.

3. Anne Currier of Salisbury, who married Nathaniel Webster of Salisbury in 1769. E. S. V.

(*729.) Samuel Martin of Andover, married Elizabeth Osgood, April 24, 1753. They had Elizabeth, Samuel, Phebe, Christopher, Peter, Mary, Amos, Nathan, Hannah, Micajor (Micaiah?), Lydia.

A more or less probable lineage has been traced back to an early English emigrant. I should like to correspond with any descendant of the first-named Samuel with a view to ascertaining for mutual benefit the correct lineage, as determined by record or tradition.

(*730.) Is there a genealogy of Anthony Colby and wife Susanna, who came with Winthrop and went to Salisbury? The New England Genealogist gives the first three generations quite fully. I wish to identify the parents of Ambros Colby, who, I think, was about the fourth generation. He was born in Salisbury or Amesbury about 1722 and went to Maine in 1768, and was one of the first settlers of Deer Isle, Me. T. P. C.

(*733.) 1. Who were the parents of Sarah Greenleaf who married Jan 1, 1738-9, Moses Pearson of Rowley?

2. Who were the parents of Susannah Pike who married Dec. 12, 1717, Richard Adams of Newbury? C. V. C.

Answers.

*653. 3. Captain George Knox married Mary, daughter of Hugh Montgomery. She was born at Londonderry, New Hampshire, Jan. 13, 1722. 4. Hugh Montgomery married Jane, daughter of Rev. James and Marion (Cargil) McGregor. For an account of Hugh Montgomery, Rev. James McGregor and David Cargil see Parker's "History of Londonderry, N. H." Rev. James McGregor married Marion Cargil, Oct. 1706. 5. Archelaus Adams, born at Newbury, Mass., Nov. 21, 1714, married Mercy, daughter of Samuel and Sarah Dow. He died at Salisbury, Jan. 1783. Mercy Dow was born at that place Nov. 27, 1717. Archelaus was the son of Archelaus Adams, who married Sarah March at Newbury, Mass., March 18, 1698. This Archelaus was the son of Robert and Eleanor Adams of Devonshire, England.

All the above were ancestors of the writer, who will be pleased to communicate direct with "L. S. A." MRS. F. B. TROUP.

*701. 1. Samuel Webb, born in London, England, died in Deer Isle, Me., Feb. 15, 1785. 2. I do not see Thomas and Ruth Webb. 3. No. 4. Dr. Jonathan Hayward died in Weymouth, 1739. He had children. J. W. P.

From the Webb monument, erected in the Old North Cemetery, Weymouth, it appears that Samuel Webb, who married Susanna Randall, was born in London, England, Dec. 14, 1696, O. S., and died at Deer Isle, Me., Feb. 15, 1785, and that his father's name was Samuel. His son Samuel, born July 31, 1722, married Ruth Ward. He also had a son Thomas, whose wife's name was Sarah. S. W. R.

*705. Joshua Wood, who married Elisabeth Campbell in Bradford, Oct. 19, 1722, was the son of David and Elizabeth Wood of Bradford; born Oct. 16, 1727. David was the son of Solomon and Mary Wood of Bradford, and was born July 31, 1691. Solomon was the son of Thomas and Ann, of Rowley, and as born in Rowley in 1670. Thomas died Rowley in 1687. L. A. *Mr. McGregore was the first minister of the west parish. His son Robert married Elizabeth, daughter of Gen. George Reid of Revolutionary fame, and settled in Goffstown. He built the first bridge across the Merrimack river, where the McGregor bridge now stands. Not many considered this a feasible project, and among others who were incredulous was Gen. John Stark, who declared: "You may succeed, Robert, but when the first passenger crosses over I shall be ready to die." The doughty old warrior, as a matter of fact, lived twenty years after the completion of the bridge, and crossed it many times.

†Probably this and Annas and Annis were different ways of spelling the same name. Annis Cargill
